Yvonne Partyka and Joanna Klinger, Surviving Shattered Dreams (A Story of Hope and Despair): Tells the story of two women (former minister's wives) coming together, and being honest with each other about infidelity, betrayal, abuse, child abuse, and abandonment issues. They share their experiences with each other and through their honesty and trust in each other were able to help one other get through challenges from their past. Several truths are revealed, helping other women to realize that they are not the only ones that experience these types of pains and abuse to their children. The book shares the scriptures and conversations that help bring them back to God after divorce. They share their angry with God and feelings of abandonment by God and their ex-husbands. They share how they realized that God was all along. The book helps others to understand how ministry ideas play a role in women remaining in abusive relationships, how MINISTER'S WIVES help cover up lies and deceit. Emotions, thought processes, and beliefs are exposed and explain why so many stay in relationships which ultimately cause hurt and pain to the family and church as a whole. Every chapter in the book clearly defines questions that many people are afraid to face and answer which could help them seek truth. The book also shares the importance of maintaining a relationship with God through pain.

LYNNE JASAMES

Shelia D Poole, He Redeemed my Time: Tells the story of how a young lady had the desire to be liked, romanced, and loved at a young age. Even when her parents disapproved of any type of relationship with boys and hanging out with boys was forbidden, the desire in the young girl was still there. The young lady had to be told several years (over and over again) while growing up that she was not in love even when she thought she was. The book describes how, what she thought was LOVE left her heart broken over and over again. It expresses what the young lady was thinking and thought she was feeling during every episode of being in love. The book details how her journey began and ended searching for love and how it almost destroyed her, caused her to make irrational decisions, and why she started displaying and partaking in destructive behavior. The book provides details of these decisions and behaviors that many people can relate to and how God redeemed her every time. What many may find too embarrassing to say or share is in the book. The book's character has self-esteem issues, tried to fill a void, and occasionally contemplated suicide. The book helps the reader to see God and His ultimate plan for your life even after you feel you've ruined your life. God is a redeemer that can provide you with a mate no matter what you've done to feel you've ruined your chances at experiencing true, Godly love. To purchase the book, visit RedeemedMyTime@cs.com or write to P.O.Box 271417 Las Vegas NV 89127.

vessels and carried to the liver through the partial veins for filtration.

The liver is the laboratory of the digestive system. Everything that has been processed by the small intestine which can pass through the walls of the intestine is picked up by the blood and the water which accompanies the blood, and taken directly into the liver.

Now let's conclude that it is possible that by receiving colon irrigation (colonics) you may help the other organs to remain healthy. The quality of life could be enhanced, with exercise, water, and change in the diet to include more fruits and vegetables.

Internal cleansing may be to a lupus patient or HIV individual very important. It would be to the advantage of the patient to receive colon cleanses, since that is where viruses harbor and diseases start.

Often times learning the truth can be a frightening experience, but learning the answers can give new hope.

"Rhema Notes," and "What's in Your House?," Dr. Hemphill dedicates his time toward educating God's people as much as possible. "I live in a constant state of awe of God," he said. "Every message I preach is designed to put people in that same position. What will get them in awe? If you're in awe, you will understand who you are and it will help you grow and move. I believe that the pulpit should be used to pull people out of the pit."

The orator of clichés, Dr. Hemphill fights to avoid preaching in his everyday conversations. Just the mere mention of the work of Christ stimulates a position change in him. "Because of God, you don't have to stay where you are...if it weren't for him, I would be six feet under. I get so excited about preaching, I can't preach at all. You can't be around Jesus and not change..." You have to interrupt if you want to get the whole story.

One of the reasons behind Dr. Hemphill's state of awe stems from his near death experience when he suffered an unexplained seizure five years ago. "God gave me my life back," he said, fighting back tears. "I thought I was dreaming. But I suffered a seizure that was supposed to leave me as a vegetable never able to walk or talk again. But God gave me my life back because I had unfinished business."

A pivotal point in his ministry, Dr. Hemphill describes his 'awakening' from the dream and the seizure as a new birthday for him. But more importantly, he deems his new journey of life as a second chance to finish what God has destined him to do.

"Some people want to stand before him and hear him say 'well done thy good and faithful servant.' I want to stand before him and say 'it is finished'."
